

A work of smart.

The Museum of Visual Materials isn't just a place to view the past. It's a living, breathing display of the future with its environmentally sustainable design. From the use of recycled construction materials to solar energy and low-flow plumbing fixtures, the museum is preserving our past while doing the same for our future. It's not just smart. It's our responsibility, making the community a greener place to live for this generation and the next.

SUSTAINABILITY

ONE OF THE CORE VALUES WE APPLY TO EVERY KOCH HAZARD PROJECT.
